

CROSS-EXAMINING HAHN.

HE DOESN'T DO AS WELL WITH COL. FELLOWS AS WITH MR. HOWE.

An Effort to Show that He Was Afraid of Hussey and Had Known Him to be a Dangerous Man—He Fired the First Shot for Assistance and the Second to Hit Hussey in the Leg—Mrs. Hussey Present.

R. HOWE was promptly on time this morning at the trial of Police Officer Edward Hahn, and in his modest black hat indicated to the reporters that he anticipated the conclusion of the evidence to-day, and that he should make the last plea for the life of his client. A simple, though large and lustrous diamond shone on his expansive shirt front and a large diamond-studded ring glinted from either little finger. His iron-gray hair was combed demurely back from his high forehead, and his manner was that of a man impressed with an obligation to be serious.

Mrs. Hussey, who had listened with her head inclined—who shall say in attention or in sorrow?—to young Edw. Hahn yesterday as he related the story of the shooting, was not in court this morning when Mr. Howe began his questioning of the slayer of her husband, but came in afterward with the wife of her son, Cornelius Hussey.

Hahn's air in relating his story was that of one oppressed by the awful situation he was in, and his voice was very low, though every word was quite distinct. His language was good, as indicated in The Evening World report, and he made a favorable impression on the minds of his hearers.

To-day Mr. Howe began with:

Hahn, did you deliberate and intend to kill Jack Hussey? A. No, sir.

Q. You said you fired two shots in the air? A. That's what I did.

Q. Have you heard that Hussey had often assaulted other policemen and citizens? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you heard that Hussey was a leader of the draft riots? A. Yes, sir.

Q. This was ruled out by the Court, who also declared the last two questions properly inadmissible, and Mr. Howe excepted.

Hahn said he had been fined once and three days' pay for sitting down at 2 o'clock in the morning, and for going into a saloon, respectively.

Mr. Howe wanted to show that Hahn obtained from the blotter in the Delancey street station a knowledge of the record of Hussey as an assaulter of policemen. But this was not allowed, and Mr. Howe turned the witness over to the prosecution.

Col. Fellows cross-examined Hahn, and Hahn did not appear so well. He seemed to argue with Col. Fellows, and was captious in his replies.

Col. Fellows—You didn't intend to kill Hussey, did you Hahn? A. No, sir, I intended to wound him.

Q. Where did you intend to hit him? A. In the leg. I aimed low. I knew that the course of the bullet would be downward.

Q. Were there any piles of brick or stones in the vicinity of the place of the shooting? A. I did not see any.

Q. There had been building going on there. I did not see any piles of brick or stones. I said I did not see any.

Q. Hussey did not appear when you first saw him that evening, did he? A. No, sir.

Q. He said he didn't know you, didn't he? A. He did not.

Q. Why did you fire that first shot? A. Hussey was following me out and I wanted to attract the attention of a policeman.

Q. How near were you when you fired the shot? A. About eight feet when I fired the first; ten or twelve feet at the second shot, and fifteen feet when I fired the third shot.

Q. How many stones were thrown when you were running toward Corlies street? A. I didn't count them.

Q. Where there a dozen? A. I should think as many as that.

Q. Were you on duty when you were drinking and buying drink in those saloons? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Why did you not tell why you shot Hussey, when you were given the first opportunity at the hospital? A. I had no right to tell Hussey.

Q. This ferocious man put up his hand and asked: "Why did you shoot me?" Was it asked quietly or quietly, reproachfully? A. I did not notice signs of anger. I can't say if he was reproachful.

Q. Did he offer his hand? A. Yes, sir; but I did not take it the first time. I took it afterwards because Sgt. Lancer ordered me to.

Q. Yes, sir, you would. A. I did not take it the first time. I took it afterwards because Sgt. Lancer ordered me to.

Q. And you did not think your legs would be numb enough to take you out of his reach? No, sir.

Q. Would you be afraid of Hussey single-handed and alone if neither of you were armed, old and young? A. Yes, sir, I would.

Q. But your fear of Hussey and the crowd immediately vanished after you had fired that third shot? A. Yes, sir.

Hahn admitted to Judge Cowing that a man came near him between the first and second shots and he told him to get out of the way because he was going to shoot.

"Then you were deliberating," said Col. Fellows. "He deliberated enough to wait this man to get out of the way, you were going to shoot?" and Hahn answered in the affirmative, and this finished the examination of Edward Hahn.

The testimony of several other witnesses concluded the evidence on both sides, and as it lacked only ten minutes of the usual time for recess the judge was taken.

After recess Mr. Howe summed up for the defense, followed by Col. Fellows.

WARD'S MARRIAGE LICENSE.

The Base-Ball Short-Stop Secures It in the Philadelphia Orphan's Court.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—Yesterday afternoon in the office of the Orphan's Court of this city, John M. Ward took out the license for his marriage to Helen Daury. It has been ascertained that they were not married at the Hotel Lafayette as first announced, but that the wedding took place between 8 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon, the ceremony being performed privately by some clergyman whose name has not yet been divulged. After the wedding they returned to the hotel, where they will remain.

The license was issued by Ward himself and recites the fact that the right is given to John M. Ward, of the Sturtevant House, New York, born in Bellefonte, Penn., March 8, 1860, and a ball player by occupation, to marry Helen Gibson, whose age is given at twenty-six years without date being given, born in Cincinnati, living at No. 48 Park avenue, New York, and an actress by occupation. The fact is also recited that the lady has been previously married, but divorced Oct. 12, 1888, at San Francisco, by the Supreme Court of California. Mr. and Mrs. Ward will remain in Philadelphia for the present, it is thought.

BIG MONEY FOR THE CITY TO PAY.

The Tenth National Bank to Recover $358,000 on a Tweed Loan.

After litigation lasting many years, Judge Patterson, of the Supreme Court, gave a decision to-day awarding the Tenth National Bank $358,049.23 from the city.

The suit is a legacy of the Tweed ring. The bank's claim was for money advanced to the city in 1872, when the Tweed brothers, after the regular appropriation had been expended, Tweed, Connolly and Ingersoll were directors of the bank, and the city contended the claim on the ground that they, as directors, advanced the money to the city in order to pay false claims and divide the spoils among themselves.

Judge Patterson finds that the bank made the loan in good faith and that the members of the ring had no part in making it. The suit was brought by the city to recover $60,000 as interest due on balances of city moneys deposited in the bank. The bank admitted owing the interest, but put in the loan as a counter-claim.

BOTH SIDES TALK VICTORY.

Gov. Hill and Chairman Knapp Each Claimed of Winning the Election.

Gov. Hill returns to Albany this afternoon. During the forenoon he received a number of prominent Democrats in his parlour at the Hoffman House. Gov. Hill feels confident that the Democratic State ticket will be elected, and is advising the Committee about the canvass. The outlook in every election district in the State is to be reported to the Executive Committee, and a poll made in the probable vote in each election district.

Chairman John N. Knapp, of the Republican State Committee, said to-day: "Our campaign is progressing slowly, but surely. We are certainly going to report, but that Col. Grant will get thousands of Democratic votes. Here is a letter from a district in Cattaraugus County giving the names of fifteen Democrats who will vote for him."

THREE DAYS WITHOUT FOOD.

Alleged Experience of an Inmate of a Charitable Institution.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 13.—A case of extreme cruelty was developed to-day at the Shelter for Incurable Girls in this city. Through a visitor at the Shelter, The Evening World reporter learned that Emma Purdy, fifty years old, had been locked up in the dungeon and forgotten until four days had elapsed. The case was investigated and the Matron declared that the girl was locked in the cell as to the decision, the foreman, Garrett Van Vorst, said that the defendants had been found guilty as charged.

CLEVELAND FAVORS WASHINGTON.

Where Will the Next Democratic National Convention Be Held?

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—A movement has been started here by the Columbia Democratic Club to secure the meeting of the next National Convention in Washington as a token of the advantages of Washington as a location city will be set forth in glowing colors. It is understood that the scheme is regarded with favor by the President and his friends.

They say that if the convention is held under the portals of the White House, it will be easier for them to head off any attempt to hold the administration slate on the part of the delegates.

Michael Piggott Visits New York.

Michael Piggott, who arrived at Castle Garden from the steamer Italy last evening, is detained there by the Commissioners. He came from Dublin, and though he looks four-score, he says he is only 44. He has only 14, an old more-pipe hat, a ragged soldier's outfit and a dilapidated pair of boots. He left Ireland, he says, because times were hard and he has no friends there. He is likely to be sent back.
